Halloween

by Aidan

Halloween started over 2,000 years ago with the ancient Celtic festival of Samhain (pronounced "sow-in"). The Celts lived mainly in the region now known as Ireland. They held this important festival to mark an important change. It was the end of the warm summer, the end of their harvest, and the beginning of the cold, dark winter.

The Celts believed that on the night of Samhain, the boundary between the living and the dead became blurred. This meant that ghosts and bad spirits could easily return to the mortal world. To keep them away, people lit large bonfires and wore simple, often frightening, costumes that looked like scary animals and monsters.

The modern name "Halloween" is a short form of All Hallows' Eve. "Eve" means evening and Halloween is celebrated in the evening.

Trick or treat

by Aidan

Children dress up and collect candy

Trick-or-treating is a fun Halloween game! Children wear costumes like heroes or monsters. They go to many houses at night. They knock on the door and say, "Trick or Treat!" The people give them sweet candy. It is a happy time to smile with friends and share candy.

Monsters

by Aidan

Halloween is a special time for spooky fun! There are many kinds of monsters. Ghosts are spirits of dead people. They are often white and float easily in the air. They make mysterious sounds. Witches are women who wear black pointed hats and can fly on broomsticks. We also have powerful vampires. They come out at night to drink blood. Next we have ancient mummies, which are old, wrapped bodies from Egypt. People often wear creative costumes of these monsters and tell thrilling, scary stories to their friends. It is a very exciting night for everyone to be spooky!

Jack-o'-Lantern

by Aidan

The Jack-o'-Lantern tradition has its origins in Irish folklore about a shrewd but wicked man named Stingy Jack. Jack famously tricked the Devil on multiple occasions, securing promises that his soul would never be claimed by Hell. However, because of his deceitful and sinful life, Jack was firmly refused entry into Heaven when he died.

1. Jack tricked the devil

Bound by his promise, the Devil likewise denied Jack access to Hell, upset that the trickster had outsmarted him. Instead, the Devil mockingly gave him only a burning ember from Hell's fires to light his perpetual journey. Jack quickly placed this single coal inside a carved turnip he was carrying, creating a makeshift lantern. He was thus doomed to wander the dark Earth endlessly, becoming known as "Jack of the Lantern," which was ultimately shortened to "Jack-o'-Lantern." Early Irish people carved scary faces into vegetables like turnips to ward off his lost spirit from their homes.

2. He couldn't enter heaven

5. The first lantern was a turnip!

4. He was given a single coal

3. He couldn't enter hell
